

WRITE THE VISION

By: N.J. Stevenson, GAP Ministries Inc.

As an emerging or seasoned woman in ministry you'll want to take advantage of all resources available to you for growing your ministry. Understanding that God provides the provision for the vision is the first and most important step in being positioned for purpose. Most emerging 'woministers' are not aware of the value of being administratively prepared. There are many things to consider as you launch the ministry God has for you.....

Write The Vision:

Having a vision and writing the vision is the foundation of every wominister. A well written vision will always be specific and targeted; presenting measurable and achievable goals. Goals should include the following:

- What you desire to achieve
How you will achieve your goal
What you will do to achieve your goal and your desired completion date

Goals should be achievable. The saying that you eat an elephant one bite at a time is a perfect management tool for goals that should be staged. Always allow foundational matters to be the first goals you address. Reaching for the purchase of a new home without addressing damaged credit concerns is setting yourself up for failure. In this case your first goal would be to educate yourself on repairing your damaged credit and then actually doing it.

Make it Plain:

Simplify your goals. Your plans and goals should be written, easy to understand, easy to articulate and present to others. As you pray over the goals that you are reaching for speak them, confess them and believe them. To often we have 'desires' that never materialize because we do not confront our fears and take the first foundational steps to set the wheels in motion. Wominister, God is waiting for us to speak his promises so that he can perform them. So, write the vision and make it plain!
